

Self-Assessment Activity

Objective

This activity aims to help you identify core values, strengths, energizers, and key experiences to enhance self-awareness for making choices about future careers. Tools: Journaling about your week, Journaling using Shadow Work prompts, Personality Assessments like Myers-Briggs or DISC, consulting with loved ones you trust.

Instructions

1. Core Values

Reflect on the values that guide your decisions and actions. What three principles are most important to you and why? List your core values that you feel define your character. Examples: Kindness, teamwork, creativity, money, honesty, family and friends.

2. Strengths & Weaknesses

What skills are your top three strengths? How do they show up in your life, whether in school or with friends? Examples: writing, problem-solving, listening, creating, friendly, independent. There will also be a time when you are asked what your greatest weaknesses are. Identify them and how you can work to improve them. Examples: Procrastination, overly sensitive, public speaking.

3. Energizers

What top three activities or tasks make you feel excited and recharged? These may or may not overlap with your strengths, but they are things that you genuinely love to do. Examples: helping others, hanging out with friends, playing sports, time alone.

4. Key Experiences and Lessons Learned

Think about the top three significant moments in your life that have shaped who you are today. These can be events, achievements, challenges, or turning points. Then reflect on the lesson that you learned and how it contributed to your growth and understanding. Examples: An accomplishment, a new place or experience, a failure that taught you something important, resilience after a major change.

4. Reflection

What insights have you learned about yourself? How can you use these insights from your values, strengths, energizers, and experiences to communicate what sets you apart during a job interview and to help guide you when making career path choices?

Discovering Yourself Through Reflection

1. What does my perfect day look like? Imagine a day where everything goes exactly how I want it to. Who am I with and what activities am I doing? Describe what it looks like in 5 and 10 years. Be as detailed as possible.
2. Who is someone I look up to? What qualities do they have that I admire? Why do I admire those qualities?
3. What steps can I take to achieve my short-term and long-term goals? How can I define success for myself for next year and in 5 years? What have I changed or accomplished?
4. How do the people in my life—friends, family, teachers influence my thoughts and feelings? Who do I spend a lot of my time with? Are they a good influence, do they make me feel support and understood, and do they have qualities I admire?
5. What situations or people tend to make me feel stressed or anxious, and how do I usually respond? What does responding in a healthier way look like?
6. What fears or insecurities hold me back, and how can I begin to take steps to overcome them? What resources can I utilize or new behaviors can I start to help me?
7. How do I handle difficult emotions, and what can I do to manage them in a healthier way? What things can I try to soothe myself or distance myself from triggers?
8. If I could change one thing about my current mindset or habits, what would it be, and why? What barriers are preventing me from trying it?
9. When was the last time I felt proud of myself? What led to that feeling?
10. How do I react to failure or criticism, and what can I learn from those experiences?

11. What do I want to be known for, and what actions can I take to build that reputation?
12. How do I spend my free time, and what does that say about my priorities?
13. What motivates me to work hard, and what drains my motivation?
14. What role does social media play in my life, and how does it affect my mood or self-esteem? Do I do a good job of limiting my screen time so I don't get distracted from other things that are important to me?
15. How do I feel when I'm alone or my friends are unavailable, and what does that teach me about myself? What changes can I make to get more comfortable with being along with myself so I am content being alone?
16. How do I show kindness to others, and how do I like to receive kindness in return? Do I voice this so the people that care about me can show me kindness how I want to receive it?
17. What's one thing I would like to communicate to someone important to me that I wish they knew? What is stopping me from telling them? Is it more worth it for them to know how I feel?
18. How do I make decisions, and do I tend to trust my intuition? If not, how can I start practicing listening to my intuition and drowning out noise?
19. What's something I've learned about myself through a difficult situation or relationship? What are somethings I did that I want to do differently next time?
20. How do I typically handle conflict, and what can I do to resolve conflicts more effectively? Do I escalate the situation by getting riled up and lashing out or am I a de-escalator that remains calm, respectful, and understanding? Which one do I want to be?
21. When was the last time I stepped out of my comfort zone, and how did it feel? Why did I feel this way? What happened in my past that caused me to react that way emotionally?
22. What makes me feel the most confident, and how can I create more of those situations?

23. What's one part of my identity that I'm proud of, and how does it shape who I am?
24. How do I practice self-care, and is there anything I want to change about my routine?
25. How do I practice self-discipline, and is there anything I want to change about my approach? In what ways do I do a good job of parenting myself and what areas need improvement?
26. What do I do when I feel overwhelmed, and what would help me in those moments? How can I handle when moments feel out of control, what strategies can I try? How does it shape how I see myself and how can I start forming my own beliefs?
27. What is one self-limiting belief I have about myself, and how does it hold me back from reaching my potential? Is that belief really true, and where did it come from?
28. What are some excuses I make to avoid pursuing new experiences that scare me, and how can I challenge those beliefs?
29. When I think about success, how much of my definition is based on what others expect from me? Is this something I have to accept? Does it align with what will make me happy?
30. What are some core beliefs that shape my view of the world and my role in it, and how do they influence my relationships and goals? Should I challenge them?

Great job diving into these journaling prompts! This kind of self-reflection can be challenging, but you're doing an amazing job. Remember, exploring the roots of your beliefs and values is an ongoing journey. Keep challenging yourself to align your choices with your true self. Make it a habit to check in with yourself regularly and reflect on your thoughts and feelings. This practice will help you grow and thrive as you discover more about who you are.
